

THE FIRST PROVINCIAL DAY

WILL BE FITTINGLY CELEBRATED

The Alberta Inaugural Demonstration Begins With a Grand

Concert This Evening—Official Program of Tomorrow's Events

The Alberta inaugural celebration promises to be in every way worthy of the Province, the capital and the occasion. Neither effort nor expense has been spared to make the event one never to be forgotten by those who participate, and thoroughly representative of the appreciation of the citizens of the honor conferred upon their city. The details have been carefully and enthusiastically worked out by competent committees and a continuance of the sunny Alberta weather appears to be the only remaining requirement for a celebration in every sense successful.

Tomorrow Alberta takes her place among the federated Provinces constituting the Dominion of Canada and it is in every way fitting that the event should be marked by a demonstration thoroughly provincial in nature, scope and attendance. Nothing savouring of localism should be permitted at this time to offend the susceptibilities of those who honour Edmonton with their presence. Tomorrow and to her guests the city must not be one of the many rivals for Western supremacy in politics or commerce, but the Capital of the Province of Alberta in spirit as in fact. All that the laws of hospitality require and all that the dignity of her position demands should and doubtless will be, observed to the last degree.

To Edmonton and Central Alberta, which for many years has been known as the Edmonton district, the occasion is one of very natural pride and gratification. Not before in the history of the Canadian West have so many distinguished Canadians gathered to participate in a public celebration and it may be that the gathering will not be surpassed for many years to come. The inauguration of a Province is a rare occasion and one calculated to draw visitors in numbers far exceeding any ordinary event. That Edmonton should have been selected as the centre for such celebration is a matter of very great satisfaction to those who have made their homes in this land of immeasurable promise and have given their efforts to the development of its resources.

EARL GREY.
Governor-General of Canada, who will arrive in the city today.

Among our visitors will be the representative of His Majesty in Canada, the Premier and members of the Federal Cabinet, with many other distinguished members of the Parliament of Canada. Some of these publicists have given very practical demonstration of their faith in our future, while others have spoken of us in less flattering terms. To those who come with open minds the appearance of the town and country should strengthen the good opinions and correct the erroneous judgments.

The official heads of other Western cities will be present and to them will be afforded the opportunity of judging the comparative capabilities and progress of Central Alberta, and Edmonton.

By no means least in importance will be the representatives of United States agricultural journals who will spend the day in Edmonton and vicinity. These men are of admitted ability and influence in their spheres and the tour they are making of the Canadian West will result doubtless in the publication of facts regarding the Northwest which will add hundreds, possibly thousands to our population. Amid the excitement of the celebration, the opportunity should not and will not be lost to enable these gentlemen to see what they are particularly interested in seeing—the agricultural resources of the Saskatchewan valley.

From Trading Post to Capital

Edmonton House, or Fort Edmonton, was established here on the spot where part of the old buildings still stand, by the Hudson's Bay Company in 1797. It was the time when the success of its shipping rival, the North-West Fur Company, had roused the old company from its timid lethargy on the coast of Hudson Bay, to carry on the scheme of carrying the trade into the interior, first set on foot by Beane in the establishment of Fort Cambrland on the lower waters of the Saskatchewan in 1776. Edmonton House was established as a counter-check to the Northwest post called Fort Augustus, built in 1788, according to local tradition, about two miles west of the present town of Fort Saskatchewan, on the north bank of the river, on a flat, which is a part of a river lot farm originally belonging to a man called Grandbois. Traces are still visible which render it certain that a trading post of some kind was once in existence on this flat. Several articles of small cutlery were found a good many years ago in a hole, which was probably its cellar. The only argument against the tradition is that one of the Northwesters, in an account published by Mason, says that the two rival establishments were within rifle shot of each other. He also mentions that the X. Y. Company, another fur trading association, had a post immediately opposite, on the south side of the river.

However this may be, Fort Augustus was heard of no more after the amalgamation of the two companies in 1821 and Edmonton House gradually became the central post of a district extending as far north as Lac La Biche and Lesser Slave Lake, to Pitt on the east, to the Rocky Mountain House on the south and Fort Assiniboine on the west. It was the seat of a chief factor and preserved its importance in the Hudson Bay scheme of things until the end.

Here it was that the members of the dreaded Blackfoot confederacy, from the southern plains, in whose territory neither Northwest bourgeois nor Hudson Bay factor, however daring and experienced, had ever succeeded in gaining a permanent footing; here it was they came for their annual trade, Blood, Peigan and Blackfoot, and having come to trade, not infrequently remained to try the chances of war with their hereditary foes, the Crees. Many were the alarms and excursions which startled the pickets of the lead-bespattered old stockade, many the successful ambuscades along the winding trail to the river, many the long-drawn skirmishes which flickered and crackled fitfully among the wooded slopes back of the fort, now dotted with trim villas, sidewalks, baby carriages, piles of drain pipe, and every other evidence of the advancing march of triumphant civilization.

Outside of these little playful outbreaks of their wild customers, life behind the stockade and bastions of the old fort went on with considerable strictness, one might even call it stateliness, of discipline and routine. The belt, which hung over the entrance to the Alhambra yard, announced the hours of work and rest, and the call for meals and actions. The numerous employees included tradesmen, such as carpenters and blacksmiths. There was a small graduation of rank among the clerks and officers, culminating in the august person of the chief factor. The arrival of the "brigade" of boats and later of the annual steamer with the year's supplies was the great event of the calendar. So life went in this far-off outpost of trade and civilization for some seventy years of uninterrupted possession. The first to intrude on the solitary reign of the long succeeding line of chief factors were the missionaries. An English Methodist preacher named Rowland, one of the companions of Evans, the well known inventor of the Indian syllabic characters, is said to have been the first evangelist to penetrate so far west, but it was the Oblate Fathers, Bishop Grandin and Father Lacombe, who made the first permanent establishment in the district. For a while there was a Roman Catholic church within the fort itself.

Then in the early sixties came the miners. Reports of the existence of placer gold on the bars of the river leaked out and could not be hid. Across the line and across the mountains it drifted, as such news will drift, and from the gold fields of Montana and Kootenay and Cariboo the miners came across hundreds of miles of trackless mountains and by the dark and bloody ground of the

NORTHERN INDEPENDENCE

Northern Independence, Aug. 29.—Harvesting coming. Some wheat and barley has been cut. Crops will be very good in this vicinity if frost keeps off a little longer.

Why do land seekers, when going from Edmonton to the Pembina, go by Dead Man's Lake when there is a much better route by Independence? We understand Mr. Dorsey, the land guide, made the trip lately from his ranch in section 2-57-27, west through 58-1 and 58-2 over to McDonalds Crossing, and finds it a high, dry route. They would also find good land on this route which is open for homesteads.

Mr. Teller preached at Advance school house, August 27, at which time a Sunday school was organized.

Last Saturday a game of baseball was played between Northern and Southern Independences. Darkness caught them with the game only partly completed, the score standing 2 to 3.

The great celebration at Edmonton, September 1 comes in the midst of haying and harvesting, the busiest time for the farmers. But notwithstanding this, many rigs are conveying people and their baggage townwards no doubt to enjoy the scenes there on inauguration day.

We regret to state that old Mr. Sutton, a farmer out beyond the Alexander Reserve, met with a painful accident yesterday afternoon, August 28, while he was going through Dead Man trail which is at present in an execrable condition. It appears that his team of oxen bolted; the shaking of the roadway soon knocked his wagon to pieces. When the back wheels were left behind, Mr. Sutton was shaken off the wagon, the front wheels passing over his arms and chest. Help was obtained some miles off, at the Indian Reserve agency. Mr. Hard kindly coming to the rescue and conveying the half-dead man to a comfortable bed and telephoning at once for medical aid.

Trading Post to Capital

Blackfoot-haunted foothills. An Odyssey might be written of their adventures by the way. They were the last people the chief factors wanted to see, but they came.

Ten years or so later came the Mounted Police under Colonel Jarvis, a sorry, travel-worn, half-starved little company, holding up, literally almost carrying, their horses, and passed the winter of 1874 in the Hudson's Bay fort and went on down the river in the following spring to establish the post known as Fort Saskatchewan.

Last of all, under the stimulus of free land and the proposed construction of the Canadian Pacific through the district, came the settlers in 1880 and 1881. Although they were grudgingly admitted about the railway, their arrival was the first beginning of things in Edmonton as a town, as distinguished from a trading post. Traders, missionaries, miners, soldiers, are all necessary as pioneers of a new country, but it is the settler, the man of cows and crops, who really counts.

A little irregular cluster of log shacks and small frame buildings began to rise on the bank of the river, where now stretches the east end of Jasper avenue. There was another small business centre on the hill just west of the fort. Along the trails through the woods between one came upon a church, a saloon, a store, as the chance of the road might happen. Most of the institutions visible today in vigorous growth along our streets were perceptible in embryo in the tiny, isolated community of the eighties.

The place has had its ups and downs. It suffered from severe depression when the C.P.R. left it two hundred miles high and dry from railway communication. It suffered from a bad attack of nerves at the outbreak of the second Riel rebellion. There was not, to tell the truth, much doing in it for several years after the temporary boost given to it by the money sprinkled round during the subsequent campaign.

In '21 came the C. & E. railway and, stopping short at the river, it was accompanied and followed by a fresh wave of immigration. In '22 came incorporation with Matthew McCauley as first mayor. The next few years saw somewhat of progress and improvement, but times were deadly dull. The new town began its corporate history just about the time the last universal business depression known in America commenced its devastating course. The beginning of real, permanent prosperity in Edmonton dates from the opening of the Kootenay in '96. The Klondike stampede of '98 gave the town a fresh impetus and considerable notoriety. There was a market and better prices for farm produce, and a succession of good harvests. Settlers began to come in again and kept on coming. There has been no hitch or drawback to the advancing progress of both town and district since.

Within the short space of a quarter of a century the old conditions have completely given place to the new; and the isolated trading post has become the business centre of a well-populated district, the capital of a great province of the Dominion. But we are only at the beginning even now.

The Balance Wheel

Look inside your watch a moment. The balance wheel is pulsing 18,000 vibrations an hour. If it is in good condition, it will move 3,500 miles in a year and requires less than one tenth of a drop of oil to make it run. But it needs that little body. Don't take chances. Let me clean and oil and put your watch in order for a year. It will pay you and satisfy you.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR TO BE

Hon. H. G. V. Bulvey, who will be sworn in Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Alberta tomorrow, reached the city last evening and is a guest at the Alberta hotel.

Hon. Geo. Hedley Vearis Bulvey was born at Saginaw, N.B., on February 17, 1859. He is a graduate of the University of New Brunswick. Mr. Bulvey was elected to the Territorial Assembly in 1894, was appointed Yukon commissioner for the Territorial Government in 1898 and, returning to the Northwest, was re-elected to the Assembly in the general elections of 1902. On January 12, 1888, he was appointed Commissioner of Agriculture and Territorial Secretary, which position he held until February, 1903, when he was appointed Commissioner of Public Works, which position he has since held.

NO ENTRANCE FEES

Mr. Bulvey is said to have arisen in some quarters as to an admission fee being charged for entrance to the fair grounds tomorrow. This is entirely a mistake. There will be no admission fee to the fair grounds this evening or to the fair grounds tomorrow. The ball tomorrow evening being undertaken on private responsibility, tickets are being sold to meet the expense.

The expense of the other events is provided by the city for the entertainment of all who wish to attend.

LOCAL

—Edmonton welcomes her guests.

—The Alberta Cafe, opposite the Alberta Hotel, will open Friday evening at 9 o'clock.

—Bant defeated Wetaskiwin yesterday for the Alberta baseball championship; score 1 to 0.

—Monday being labor day, there will be no issue of the Daily Bulletin. The semi-weekly edition will be issued on Tuesday.

—Tickets for the inaugural ball until the capacity of the hall has been exhausted, will be on sale tomorrow at the Alberta and Windsor hotels.

—Tomorrow's ball game will be between the Wetaskiwin and Edmonton teams. The lacrosse match will be between the Calgary and Edmonton teams.

—The wind yesterday blew down the arches at the corner of Second and Third streets and at the Land Office. The latter two were again erected and decorated.

—The public should bear in mind that the concert this evening begins sharp at 8.45 at which hour the doors will be closed but the program may not be disturbed by late arrivals.

—Dr. Decker, of Lethbridge, who is in the city for the celebration, says the fall wheat harvest is completed in the south, some threshing has been done and a car load was delivered at Calgary some days since. The yield of all crops is generally satisfactory.

—Two magnificent arches have been erected in Edmonton, one at the corner of Whyte avenue and Railway street, the other at Douglas' Bros. corner. The arches are tastefully decorated with grain and bunting and bear respectively the mottoes, "Alberta's Birthday" and "God Save the King."

—A despatch from Seattle says: Willie Fitzgerald, a five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fitzgerald of Calgary, Alta., fell from a second-story window at the residence of Mrs. Graves, 321 Queen Anne avenue, shortly after seven o'clock on Tuesday night, and fractured his skull, dying an hour later from his injuries.

—A heavy thunder storm occurred last evening and for a time it looked gloomy for the celebration. This morning however the sun came up in almost cloudless sky, and today is bright and sunny with a delightful breeze. If the same weather is provided tomorrow nothing better could be wished. Last night's storm merely laid the dust.

—President McKenzie, of the C. N. R. and party, are expected to reach Port Saskatchewan this evening about 6 o'clock, en route to Edmonton. The party includes Mr. H. J. McKenzie, Mr. Howard A. Kennedy, editor of the weekly London Times, and his son Robert S. Kennedy, Mr. C. C. Chapman, of the Hudson's Bay Co., Mr. B. E. Walker, general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, and Mr. E. A. James.
